For each Pual form, also identify the weak-root type (I-י, II-י, III-ה, or R2=ר). The answer key begins on the page marked "Answer Key".

Reflection Questions

1. Verb 3 (קָנָה, I-קָנָה Pual Perfect) and verb 4 (קָנָה, Niphal Wayyiqtol) both come from קָנָה and both express passive meaning. What visual feature most immediately distinguishes the Pual from the Niphal in these I-קָנָה forms?
2. Verbs 7–8 (קָנָה / קָנָה, I-קָנָה Pual) show that in the Pual, קָנָה stays as R1 and takes Qibbuts rather than assimilating as in the Qal Imperfect (קָנָה). What grammatical principle causes the different behavior between stems?
3. Verbs 9–10 (קָנָה / קָנָה, III-קָנָה Pual) parallel verb 5 (קָנָה, Piel active). What single vowel under R1 most quickly identifies Piel vs. Pual? How does this i/u distinction work in the strong paradigm (קָנָה vs. קָנָה)?
